Not Forsaking the Assembly of God

Certainly, Sam. The call to not forsake the assembly of God, often referenced in Hebrews 10:25, carries profound spiritual and communal significance. The verse states: _"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching."_

This directive highlights the importance of gathering with fellow believers, not merely as a religious obligation but as a means of mutual encouragement and spiritual growth. Here are some key dimensions to this topic with supporting biblical references:

1. The Assembly as a Source of Strength

- Ecclesiastes 4:9-12 emphasizes the power of unity: _"Two are better than one... For if they fall, one will lift up his companion."_ Gathering with others strengthens individuals and fosters resilience, both spiritually and emotionally.

2. Encouragement and Exhortation in Community

- Galatians 6:2 calls for believers to _"bear ye one another's burdens,"_ underscoring how fellowship is essential for mutual support.

- 1 Thessalonians 5:11 encourages believers to _"comfort yourselves together, and edify one another."_

3. A Reflection of Christ’s Design for the Church

- Jesus Himself emphasized community in Matthew 18:20: _"For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."_ This speaks to the sacred nature of assembly.

4. Preparation for the "Day Approaching"

- Hebrews 10:25 ties the importance of assembly to the anticipation of Christ's return. The gathering of believers is a preparation for the coming Day of the Lord, cultivating faith and readiness.

5. Historical Practices of Worship

- The early Church modeled the significance of assembly in Acts 2:42-47, where they devoted themselves to teaching, fellowship, breaking of bread, and prayers. Their unity brought about spiritual and communal blessings.

Forsaking the assembly not only disconnects one from the spiritual nourishment found in fellowship but also from the collective work of the Holy Spirit within the Church body. It diminishes opportunities for accountability, encouragement, and growth.
